Excellence Award for Occupational Safety & Health

2010

المؤسسة العامة
للضمان الاجتماعي
Social Security Corporation

"The endless dedication and unlimited creativity of the worker is realized when his or her rights and needs are protected, especially by the employer... Providing the worker with occupational stability, a decent and secure work environment, and suitable job opportunities enhances a worker's dedication to his or her work and boosts productivity"

From His Majesty King Abdullah II Letter on the occasion of the Labor Day, 2007

Stemming from its concern in occupational safety and health issues, and in response to its national responsibilities of providing social protection to all insured persons, SSC has focused on the importance of protecting human being as one of the significant element of the development and production progress and enabling him/her to perform his/her duty in the society effectively and efficiently; such protection is mainly achievable through adopting practical and preventive measures that reduce as much as possible the exposure to work-related injuries and occupational diseases, as well as securing firms' tangible assets. Hence, SSC has kicked off the Excellence Award for Occupational Safety and Health (EAOSH).

Objectives of EAOSH:

The EAOSH aims to promote standards and arrangements of occupational safety and health in workplaces in an effort to reduce as much as possible work injuries and occupational diseases, and secure safety of worker and society through encouraging excellence in different fields of occupational safety and health and honoring distinguished individuals and firms in such fields.

Fields of EAOSH:

The nomination for this Award is in one of the following fields:
